

I'm not a robot!

If you need possessive pronoun worksheets, here are two worksheets for you to use, either for yourself or for any students you may be teaching. In the first part, the students will identify possessive pronouns. In the second part, the students will practice using all the possessive pronouns in the following sentences. HINT: There are 15. I took my dog to a dog show. His hair was longer than hers. I saw that her dog was smaller than their dog. Someone asked, "Is that dog yours?" I replied, "Yes, he's mine. I wonder whose dog is the smallest. My dog won a first place ribbon. His ribbon was big and its color was blue. My parents and I were proud of our dog. Everybody thinks that one's dog is special. I'm sure your dog is special, too. B. Fill in the blank with the proper possessive pronoun: mine, ours, his, hers, yours, its, theirs I paid for my scarf, so it is _____. Pick any of these desserts. The choice is _____. The math book belongs to Ralph. It is _____. All my brothers love video games. Playing them is a favorite pastime of _____. We bought this game together, so it is _____. Part A: I took my dog to a dog show. His hair was longer than hers. I saw that her dog was smaller than their dog. Someone asked, "Is that dog yours?" I replied, "Yes, he's mine. I wonder whose dog is the smallest?" My dog won a first place ribbon. His ribbon was big and its color was blue. My parents and I were proud of our dog. Everybody thinks that one's dog is special. I'm sure your dog is special, too. Part B: This part of possessive pronoun worksheet is geared for more advanced students. It will include practice on using these possessive pronouns and contractions: your, yours, you're, its, it's, whose, who's, their, theirs, there's. Don't let possessive pronouns and gerunds confuse you. Look at these two sentences: She can't take him complaining all the time. She can't take his complaining all the time. In the first sentence, what can't she take, "him" or "complaining"? The second sentence uses a possessive pronoun so you know that it is the "complaining" that she can't take. Another confusing possessive pronoun is "one's." This is the only possessive pronoun that has an apostrophe. View & Download PDF A. Underline the correct possessive pronoun or contraction. (Who, Whose, Who's) going to fix this horrible mess? During (their, theirs, there's) party, Sam and Janet danced the tango. Do you know (who, whose, who's) candy this is? If (your, yours, you're) not careful, the ink will spill. Is that rude child (your, yours, you're)? Give me (your, yours, you're) attention. (Its, It's) plain to see why she likes him. (Their, Theirs, There's) really no reason to go outside now. That is a nice statue; I like (its, it's) pose. Some cousins of (their, theirs, there's) are coming to a visit. B. Underline the correct word in each sentence. My son did his homework without (me, my) asking him. It is good manners to ask (ones, one's) permission. (Your, You) winning the game was great. I loved (they, their) singing. Those jokes are the really funny (ones, one's). Part A: Who's their whose you're yours your It's There's sitstheirs Part B: Practice makes perfect! The more you read and write, and especially the more varied content you explore, the better your command of the English language will be. As you continue mastering the intricacies of possessive pronouns, get in some more practice with more pronoun worksheets. A simple pronoun quiz might be a good place to start for beginners too. Indefinite Pronoun Worksheets Indefinite pronouns are a helpful component of the English language. They replace nouns when too many nouns would become clunky or repetitive. As indefinite words, they don't point to someone or something specific. Examples of singular indefinite pronouns include "someone," "no one," and "everyone." Plural indefinite pronouns include words like "several," "many," and "others." The best way to practice new concepts is to see them in action in worksheets. If you're on the hunt for some pronoun practice, we have two sheets here for you. The first indefinite pronouns worksheet is straight and to the point. Once you're confident you or your students have things under control, you can turn things up a notch with the second worksheet. Types of Pronouns A pronoun is a word that replaces a noun in a sentence. Using pronouns keeps you from repeating the same nouns over and over again. There are many different types of pronouns, each serving a different purpose. Keep reading for the different types of pronouns that you're likely to encounter in your reading and conversations. Rewrite each sentence, replacing the underlined words with the correct term from the Word Box. Circle the target word in each of the sentences. Choose the correct pronoun to complete each sentence. Write its letter on the line. Read each sentence below and form a word that will give it control. Rewrite each sentence, replacing the nouns with a pronoun from the Word Box, or by changing some of the words to use the corrected pronoun. Complete all the of the sentences by using words you have previously identified. Many choices to choose from to complete these sentences. Rewrite each sentence, replacing the noun with a equal, but opposite pronoun. Underline each word or set of words that could be written using a possessive. Then rewrite that there sentence. These can almost be read as if they purposely riddles. Write a response to each sentence. You will need to show ownership though. Use the hints provided in parentheses. Follow the example. EX: Whose hat is that? (Jim) --- That is his hat. --- Rewrite the underlined words. Some of the other words in the sentence may need to be reorganized. Find the proper pronoun that tells you who this belongs to. Let's tell them exactly who it belongs to. Each picture below shows something that possesses something else. Write a phrase on the line underneath each picture that says what each thing possesses. Time to be a sentence hawk and find those pesky pronouns with purpose. We can use possessive pronouns to indicate that something is ours or someone else's. They can also be used to refer to something that is owned by someone else. Examples of possessive pronouns: Mine, His, Hers, Its, Yours, Ours, Theirs Examples of possessive adjectives: My, His, Her, It, Your, Our, Their Both this form of adjectives and pronouns have the same purpose: they demonstrate possession, which can be interpreted as ownership of something, as in "something belongs to me" or "something belongs to someone else." The only difference is put to use. It is necessary to follow possessive adjectives with a noun in a sentence. Students with often not be able to tell the difference between a contraction and a possessive but serve a completely different purpose. First off contractions contain an apostrophe. Remind your students that contractions take the place of two distinct words. The best way to check yourself is to see if both words are required, then the contraction fits the sentence. Possession can take on two forms: absolute and weak. The absolute pronoun form does not modify a noun and is thought to be factual. The weak form always follows the noun. Both singular and plural pronouns can be possessive. Independent Forms: Possessive pronouns make it easier to express a noun's ownership by replacing it. They are also called independent possessive pronouns because they are used without a noun in a sentence. Take a look at the following sentence, which does not contain a possessive pronoun, to have a better idea of how these types of words can make things easier to comprehend and more precise: Example: Johnny's sports bag is heavier than my sports bag. The word "sports bag" is used twice and sounds repetitive. If we write this sentence with a possessive pronoun, it will simplify things. Example: Johnny's sports bag is heavier than mine. Here are some more examples to give you a bit of practice with: Example: My laptop is dead, and I need to work, pass me yours. "Yours" is a possessive pronoun here. Example: Aryan has better handwriting than mine. "Mine" is the term of interest here. Example: The boat near the shore is ours. "Ours" is the term that serves this purpose here. Example: My fork fell; pass me yours. "Yours" is the word getting it done here. As you can see from the above examples, possessive pronouns usually come at the end of a sentence. Adjective Forms Possessive adjectives can also identify who or what owns a given object. In contrast to possessive pronouns, which take the place of nouns, these types of words appear before nouns to serve as modifiers. In the same way that the pronoun form can be used to simplify sentences, the adjective form can do the same. To understand what is meant by that, let's look at an example that doesn't have any possessive adjective. Example: Sarah is proud of Sarah's result. Sarah here is used twice, which makes the sentence sounds a bit clunky; as a result, bow let us see an example where a possessive adjective is being used; for simplification, let us modify the already given example. Example: Sarah is proud of her result. We can see the modification and simplification of the sentence through a possessive adjective. Let us consider a few more examples. Example: Her book is new. "Her" is a possessive adjective here. Example: Their house looks like a mansion. "Their" is the culprit here. Example: Our dinner is cold. "Our" is the one getting it done here. Example: Could you bring her lunch out to her? "Her" is the word that serves this purpose. Example: I would have entered your class, but I saw the lecture was already over. "Your" is the one getting it done here. The above examples show that the possessive adjective requires a noun after completing the sentence; it also simplifies the sentence. A common mistake of using an apostrophe: People commonly mistake putting an apostrophe in possessive pronouns and adjectives. Example: My charger is not working; pass me yours. Here, "your's" is incorrect since it means "you are" Let us consider another example. Example: Don't judge a book by its cover. Here "it's" is incorrect since it means "it is." Using an apostrophe changes the sentence and makes it incorrect in this case, so remember these forms of words. Conclusion Possessive pronouns play an essential role in English to help us understand the sentences more accurately.
